Explanation of the Wrat4-AOdds Report

The purpose of the Wrat4-AOdds report is to focus on the top 4 Wrat runners and their Wizard assessed odds. In addition, the early race-morning pre-post odds (adjusted to 120%) are included so that a user has an indication as to likely price advantage or disadvantage that might occur later in the day.

The Wrat top four rated runners historically win some 70% of the 17,000 races rated annually by the Wizard formguide.

By focusing on these favoured runners, the Wizard streamlines the selection-making process for win and place bettors, as well as those who prefer quinella, trifecta, first-four, quadrella, and other forms of exotic betting.

The Wrat4-AOdds report is posted twice daily on the everyrace website.

The first posting on the everyrace website is around 8:30am when eastern state scratchings have been processed. The second posting occurs just after 11:00am when scratchings for the remainder of the country should have been received and processed.

(Note: The second edition of the Wrat4-AOdds report will also update the first edition to account for any late scratchings that might have been notified between 8:15am and 10:30am.)

Race header: Track name, weather and track condition, race number, class/type of race, and distance. After the distance (in brackets) is the number of starters in the race and an asterisk if there are any first time starters.

Tab: Tab/racebook number

Horse name: Name of the runner

WRat Rk: Ranking number based on the Wizard Wrat, with (1) being the top rated 100 pointer, (2) being the second top-rated, and so on.

AOdds: Wizard assessed odds with its market set to a maximum of 100%.

AOdds%: The Wizard assessed odds expressed as a percentage (chance of success). For example, a horse assessed at $4.00 would have a corresponding 25% chance of winning.

EOddsAM: The (average) odds offered by wagering operators, adjusted to a full market percentage of 120%.

EOddsAM%: The wagering operators average odds expressed as a percentage. For example, a horse priced by them at $7.00 would have a corresponding 14.3% chance of winning.

Avg%: The total of the percentage chances as assessed by the Wrat and the Early Odds, divided by two.
